I. INTRODUCTION

Residents of the Crown Heights and Eastside neighborhoods of the City of Oceanside, California have identified a set of community issues that have a negative effect on their community. These issues, including the lack of decent, affordable housing, overcrowding in existing rental units, crime (including drugs and youth gang activity), lack of open space, the poor condition of streets and alleys, and a significant lack of available programs for youth (including early childcare) are identified as the problems of greatest concern to the residents of these neighborhoods. It is because of the similarities of these issues facing these neighborhoods and their proximity to each other that the City has combined them into a comprehensive Neighborhood Revitalization Strategy Area (NRSA) and a NRSA Plan to address the issues.

The City has prepared this NRSA Plan also to address changing issues and needs within the Crown Heights and Eastside areas. The Plan includes descriptions of neighborhood conditions, survey information from local residents, businesses, and social service providers, and community/City staff input to demonstrate the need to implement a comprehensive approach to the problems faced in the Crown Heights and Eastside areas.

The Crown Heights and Eastside NRSA areas need a combination of social, economic and physical assistance to improve the quality of life, public safety and economic opportunity for residents and business owners. The overall goal of the Plan is to direct the limited human and financial resources in these neighborhoods in a manner that best improves the lives of current and future Oceanside residents and decreases service costs to the City in the long-run.

Community HousingWorks (CHW) develop the NRSA Plan based on information and assessment completed via significant outreach done with neighborhood residents, major stakeholders, and business owners. In September of 2007, the City Council considered and supported the preparation of this NRSA by CHW in cooperation with the community residents, business owners, social service providers, and City Departments. CHW was active in the surveying of residents and facilitating discussions to obtain data and input regarding community needs. CHW and shared this information with City staff in the Police Department, Housing and Code Enforcement Division, Parks & Recreation Division, and Community Development Department (Planning and Engineering) during the planning process to discuss community feedback and develop appropriate City responses to the needs. CHW circulated drafts of the proposed plan during the latter part of 2009 to City staff and community residents for review and comment.

II. NRSA DEMOGRAPHIC QUALIFICATION CRITERIA

In order to qualify the NRSA for approval by the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD), the “neighborhood boundaries” must be residential and have over 56.37% low-income households. In the Crown Heights neighborhood, approximately 80.30% of the residents are low-income and in the Eastside neighborhood, approximately 70.17% of the residents are low-income. Therefore, the Crown Heights and Eastside areas qualify as meeting the requirements of the HUD regulations per 2000 U.S. Census Data.

The NRSA covers an area (see map) that includes all of the Crown Heights neighborhood; a recreation area between the two neighborhoods that includes the Oceanside Senior Citizens Center, the Boys and Girls Club and other important community facilities in both neighborhoods; housing development sites along Country Club Lane; the small business district along San Diego Street in need of enhancement; and the Joe Balderrama Park and Recreation Center (JBRC) in the Eastside neighborhood. The City has recently completed a master plan for development of the latter facility and is currently seeking funding to implement the master plan. This development will have a major impact on the Eastside neighborhood and adjacent recreation areas, and needs to be considered as part of the overall NRSA Plan.

III. DESCRIPTION OF NRSA AREAS

Boundaries and Characteristics

The Crown Heights neighborhood is generally bound by Mission Avenue to the north, Interstate Highway 5 to the east, Missouri Street to the south, and Horne Street to the west. Crown Heights is the most densely populated neighborhood in the City and has a significant population of immigrant families from Mexico and Central America. The area boasts a mostly Spanish-speaking population with lower education levels and relatively high employment. High rents have led to two and even three families living in one apartment.

The Eastside NRSA area, which is contiguous to the Crown Heights neighborhood, is generally bound by Bush Street to the north but including Joe Balderrama Park, Holly Street to the east, Mission Avenue to the south and Interstate Highway 5 to the west. The two neighborhoods are connected by an area of commercial developments, ball fields, rental housing and recreation facilities that are important to the success of the NRSA Plan. The Eastside neighborhood is a more settled area with a mix of rental and owner-occupied housing, and a generally higher average family income. Some families have lived in the Eastside for multiple generations. The neighborhood has long had a problem with youth gangs; the first neighborhood-based gang injunction was filed against Posole gang members in the neighborhood. The following table provides information comparing the proposed Crown Heights/Eastside NRSA to the City of Oceanside as a means to demonstrate the need for its implementation.

Education

The overall level of educational is lower in the NRSA neighborhoods when compared to the citywide education level. Based on community input and interviews with non-profit service providers, this is a reflection of overstretched resources and gang influences in the NRSA neighborhoods. Estimates from various sources are that between 20 and 40 percent of students from the neighborhoods who enter high school do not graduate, leaving them with limited prospects for future employment and self-advancement. The number of poorly educated and economically disenfranchised youth presents a fertile recruiting ground for youth gang activity. The continued strength of gangs in the NRSA neighborhoods further impedes the next generation of youths coming through the education system. Instead of moving into productive roles in mainstream society or higher education after high school graduation, nearly half the youth in the NRSA neighborhood remain un- or under-employed.

Survey results indicate the lack of education attainment has more to do with social and economic issues than access to public education. The Pew Center for Hispanic Studies recently reported that many Hispanic youth drop out of school in order to work to support their families and not because of any disregard for the importance of education.¹

Educational Levels
	Crown Heights	Eastside	Citywide
9 th grade or below	32%	28%	9%

Oceanside High School is just north of the Crown Heights neighborhood and serves students from both neighborhoods. Laurel Elementary serves students in the Eastside neighborhood and residents consider this "their school." Elementary school students from Crown Heights attend four different schools so there is no counterpart "neighborhood school" for Crown Heights residents. The majority of elementary school students attended Ditmar Elementary School adjacent to the Crown Heights neighborhood; the school district closed this school in the summer of 2008 due to a combination of reduced enrollment and necessary budget cuts. The children from Ditmar were placed in the surrounding four existing schools. In addition, the Oceanside Unified School District (OUSD) has also restricted transportation to middle schools and high schools, and closed daycare offerings for children of students at the two comprehensive high schools. The loss of daycare directly affects students attending Oceanside High School from the Crown Heights neighborhood; the only remaining daycare for children of teen parents is at Ocean Shores High School, the district's continuation high school. The Crown Heights Neighborhood Association is working with parents, the OUSD, City of Oceanside's Neighborhood Services staff, and Community HousingWorks to reinstate the partnership that was developed two years ago to provide bus transportation for the Crown Heights students for an affordable fee.

Employment

As discussed above, the limited basic education for many residents and the number of residents who are struggling with English as a second language diminish the employment opportunities for many in the NRSA neighborhoods. With limited education, many youth cannot take advantage of existing vocational educational opportunities that would provide the necessary job skills to improve their economic status. Employment options remaining include lower paying jobs in the retail, service and manual labor employment sectors.

Economic Assessment

Employers in the area are primarily retail service job providers. Because of low-wage jobs and a high percentage of income being spent on housing, neighborhood residents do not have enough income to provide for all basic needs and rely on public and nonprofit social services to fill the gap. Limited capital circulating in the NRSA neighborhoods also contributes to limited business offerings for local residents, including jobs and services. As the current economic situation stagnates or worsens, businesses and residential property owners are not motivated to make capital improvements to their properties, creating a net disinvestment in the NRSA neighborhoods and further straining resources in a downward spiral. The poverty rate is two (Eastside) to three times (Crown Heights) greater the rest of the City, as calculated by the Census Bureau.

In the 1990s, mobile food trucks began coming to the Crown Heights neighborhood in response to the need for ready access to food and grocery items. Since that time, the number of mobile vendors in the neighborhood has tripled creating a nuisance in the community. In the early part of this decade, the City's Code Enforcement officers have been enforcing parking regulations to limit the over-saturation of the mobile businesses, which sometimes operate without all required permits. City staff have come to meetings of the Crown Heights Neighborhood Association to inform the parents of restrictions on the food trucks and to encourage them to accompany their children when making purchases. The narrow streets pose a danger for children and youth. A Value Plus market has opened since that time within walking distance of the neighborhoods, which has led to fewer mobile vending trucks in the neighborhood. The food trucks also provide easy access to candy and snack food for children and youth, contributing to poor nutrition for them. the County Health and Human Services Agency has also raised some concern about candies produced in Mexico that are sold in wrappers containing lead with potential negative effect upon children.

To assist small business developers in the NRSA neighborhoods, Community HousingWorks used funds in the Crown Heights Neighborhood to establish a Micro Enterprise Training Program in English and Spanish that was well received. The economic recession of the past two years has had a negative impact on existing businesses in the NRSA with little opportunity for new employment. Such new businesses as have started up in the City require at least a high school diploma and in the case of the new biotech industries, post-secondary training.

Community Resources

The NRSA includes the Joe Balderrama Park and Recreation Center, Cesar Chavez Park, the Joe Ortega Recreation Center, the Oceanside Boys and Girls Club, the Oceanside Senior Citizens Center and the Americanization School in Crown Heights. The Chavez Resource Center in the Eastside neighborhood and the Crown Heights Resource Center provide a variety of services for residents, both from the City and from nonprofit partners. Collaborating community-based non-profit organizations include

Camp Fire USA and North County Lifeline for youth programs, Vista Community Clinic and North County Health Services for a variety of medical and health promotion activities, Interfaith Community Services working with at-risk youth from the neighborhoods to keep them in school, North County Community Services for childcare programs and the Brother Benno Foundation for emergency food assistance. The Joe Balderrama Recreation Center, Chavez Community Resource Center, Crown Heights Community Resource Center, Campfire USA, the Oceanside Boys and Girls Club and the Oceanside Senior Citizens Center are primary sites for the social service programs in the NRSA neighborhoods. A new North County Health Services clinic opened in 2009 less than two miles from the Crown Heights neighborhood. Due to limited operating resources because of State budget restrictions, help is not available for all those in need of services and space at the various facilities is limited.

While there is a significant physical infrastructure as discussed earlier, all programs are restricted by lower operating budgets, which in turn limit overall outreach and service to the NRSA neighborhoods. Residents have raised the issue of access to community resources due to the lack of lighting on the bridge over Interstate 5; many Crown Heights parents see the freeway as a barrier to resources and facilities in the east side of the freeway, and are afraid that their children will be assaulted by Posole gang members from the Eastside.

In October of 2009, the City Council approved a policy to restrict CDBG public services funding only to those programs that provide services for residents of CDBG-eligible neighborhoods and for activities at City parks and recreation centers, community resource centers and senior centers. The policy helps protect existing programs in the Crown Heights and Eastside neighborhoods from budget cutbacks, since the loss of existing programs would further exacerbate the problems facing the community. The programs for children and youth are critical to continue prevention and intervention programs that promote positive youth development as a primary way to reduce the influence and activity of youth gangs in the neighborhoods. The programs for senior nutrition, emergency services and health screenings at City facilities serve the neediest of the City's residents and are an invaluable resource in this time of economic recession. The new policy ensures that essential programs continue in these neighborhoods during a time of cutbacks of General Fund support resulting from the current economic recession.

With the anticipated approval of this NRSA, it may be possible to fund activities beyond the CDBG fifteen percent public services cap to further enhance these NRSA areas, especially with regard to services for children and youth and economic development activities. The City will work with Community HousingWorks as its nonprofit Community-Based Development Organization (CBDO) partner,

Crime

The 2008 crime rates for the Crown Heights and Eastside neighborhoods are among the top five for the City of Oceanside. Specifically, the Eastside neighborhood ranked highest for armed robberies and the second highest for residential burglaries, while Crown Heights ranked the second highest for armed robberies and aggravated assaults. Crown Heights was also among the top five neighborhoods citywide for rapes, strong-arm robberies and motor vehicle thefts.

The significant portion of the crime for both neighborhoods is attributable to the Center Street gang in the Crown Heights neighborhood and the Posole street gang in the Eastside neighborhood, including direct criminal activity (theft and violent assault) by the gangs, the sale of narcotics and the criminal activity related to the sale and purchase of narcotics. The strong presence of street gangs in both communities continues to threaten the health and safety of both NRSA communities and particularly the youth population. The Posole gang in particular is a multi-generational gang, with some parents expecting their children to join when they come of age. Gang members recruit school-age children for gang membership leading to truancy at the schools. While the children are participating in or protecting the gang's criminal activity the school loses attendance funding for the truant child. Furthermore, children and youth who do not participate in gang activity suffer from intimidation or threats of violence and often join the local gangs for protection.

The lack of adequate funding for staffing and facilities for youth gang diversion programs as well as programs to recruit child gang members back into a productive place in society has been a constant battle for both communities. The long-term presence of gangs continues to inhibit both NRSA communities from attracting the necessary private capital to establish meaningful economic development, including needed local services (groceries, medical, banking etc.), which would employ members of both NRSA communities.

IV. COMMUNITY NEEDS ASSESSMENT

As part of developing the NRSA Plan, Community HousingWorks (CHW) developed a Community Needs Assessment to clarify the current state of the Crown Heights and Eastside neighborhoods. The Assessment was also used to detail the current role of existing community service providers and examine requirements for improved service to the NRSA. This Assessment was prepared in conjunction with an overall neighborhood revitalization strategy for the combined neighborhoods. To prepare for this undertaking, CHW facilitated community discussions/surveys, demographic analysis as well as interviews with City staff and neighborhood community service providers.

Background

The Community Assessment completed in 2000 for the Crown Heights neighborhood did not include the Eastside area. Issues identified at the time of the Crown Heights Assessment were a lack of access to quality food vendors as well as the problems associated with existing mobile food providers; infrastructure deficiencies (parks, streets, health clinic); the need for a comprehensive community association to strengthen community leadership; and the desire to develop jobs, educational training, and micro-enterprise development.

The Crown Heights neighborhood has made significant progress since the 2000 Assessment. A community association, Crown Heights Neighborhood Association, was established and remains as a key contributor in the current Assessment. Micro-enterprise workshops have been held in the Crown Heights neighborhood, along with the offering of English classes to the primarily Hispanic population to facilitate job skill training and overall employment development. The City has completed a variety of infrastructure improvements with HUD EDI and Neighborhood Improvement (NI) funds.

Despite the successes of programs that grew out of the 2000 Assessment, much more remains to be done in both the Crown Heights and Eastside neighborhoods. Community support services are overstretched as they are providing food programs, childcare for working parents, along with after school daycare and English as a Second Language education to facilitate job training for the underemployed. Neighborhood residents cite the lack of affordable housing in the neighborhoods as the most significant issue facing households in the neighborhoods. In addition, residents responding to surveys cited crime including drugs and gang activity, the lack of open space, poor conditions of streets and alleys, the limited availability of childcare and programs for youth as priority issues in the community.

Neighborhood Consultation

The primary outreach methodology was the collecting of resident input through surveys. To accomplish this, CHW attended Eastside Community and Crown Heights neighborhood meetings. At these meetings, staff explained to residents the purpose of the survey and the importance of participating for overall community understanding and benefit. Overall, CHW and Crown Heights Resource Center staff conducted one-on-one interviews and collectively completed 185 surveys.

As for local community service providers, CHW staff worked with staff of the Crown Heights Resource Center to identify all of the current service providers in the identified geographical area. From there an electronic survey was sent to service providers explaining the purpose of the survey and the importance of their feedback; five service providers completed the survey. A reminder was sent to the remaining service providers, and this reminder was followed up with individual phone calls asking survey questions; this resulted in an additional nine service providers completing the survey for a total of fourteen surveys completed.

In addition, the small business community located along San Diego Street was the focus of a one-on-one survey questionnaire. Six of the approximate ten businesses located along San Diego Street, just north of Mission Avenue, in Eastside were interviewed. These businesses expressed assistance in the following areas: parking, façade rehabilitation, ADA issues, street improvements (striping), security issues, and technical assistance with their business operations including marketing.

Workshop Summary

The workshop/survey process reaffirmed similar concerns/issues from the 2000 Assessment with notable exceptions being food access and community health services. Resident surveys were conducted in the following six categories: Public Safety, Physical Conditions, Housing, Health and Social Services, Education and Job Training, and Parks and Recreation. The following sections summarize the significant issues for residents in each of these six categories followed by actual survey results for each category:

Public Safety

Overall community safety as well as neighborhood crime (assaults, burglaries, drugs and alcohol abuse) largely stem from youth gang activity. Enabling factors to be discussed later include the lack of adequate street lighting and youth diversion programs at times (weekend and evening) when the youth need them. Residents requested more community policing (foot patrols) in the neighborhood. In addition, residents were concerned about the underage consumption of alcohol as a gateway to other criminal activity.

Prioritize your concerns regarding public safety in your neighborhood
Concern	Priority 1	Priority 2	Priority 3	Priority 4	Priority 5	Other Priority	Response Count
Assaults	10	29	36	47	34	3	159
Burglaries	6	19	37	56	40	4	162
Drugs/Alcohol (sale of)	46	47	33	20	16	4	166
Gang activity	66	43	22	17	14	1	163
Overall Neighborhood Safety	35	25	37	17	45	3	162

Physical Conditions

Neighborhood survey responses highlighted two physical conditions that contribute to gang and overall criminal activity, which are the poor conditions of alleys and the lack of adequate street lighting. Residents also requested more community facilities including park and open space along with teen and community centers. However, as respondents were asked to clarify specifically what they needed with respect to community facilities, it became apparent that what they actually desire are additional program support services (addressed later) that augment or optimize the use of existing facilities.

Prioritize the need for improvement to the physical condition of your neighborhood infrastructure and facilities
Concern	Priority 1	Priority 2	Priority 3	Priority 4	Priority 5	Other Priority	Response Count
Alleys	31	40	26	21	30	9	157
Drainage	14	20	30	31	24	33	152
Parks and recreation	34	30	29	22	22	23	160

Streets	13	23	34	36	33	9	148
Sidewalks (ADA ramps)	27	22	14	21	23	49	156

Housing

In 2008, the City of Oceanside completed the acquisition and rehabilitation of the Cape Cod Villas on Barnes Street to retain these units as rent-restricted senior housing. Also in 2008, Interfaith Community Services with funding from the U.S. Veterans Administration acquired and rehabilitated two apartment buildings in the Crown Heights neighborhood to provide 72 beds for homeless and/or disabled veterans during the last year (2008). In July 2009, the City completed acquisition and rehabilitation of the 90-unit County Club Apartments. These units, which had long been a source of crime, drug use and other illegal activity, are now open as crime- and drug-free apartments affordable to very low-income families. In spite of these positive accomplishments, the residents experienced rising rents, a by-product of the California real estate boom from 2001 to 2006. This forced households to dedicate a larger percentage of their household income to rental payments, which leaves less money for needed items such as childcare, health care education and transportation. When the housing market collapsed, rents remained high due to the number of families returning to rental housing after losing their homes to foreclosure. The high cost of housing has also led to overcrowding in many residential units with two or more households per unit. As these units have deteriorated from over-use due to high occupancy rates, neighborhood property owners have not performed the needed maintenance to keep pace, thus causing further deterioration in the neighborhood's housing supply.

Prioritize the need for the following housing issues in your neighborhood
Concern	Priority 1	Priority 2	Priority 3	Priority 4	Priority 5	Other Priority	Response Count
Code enforcement (exterior)	15	24	35	33	39	5	151
Health and Safety conditions (interior)	35	40	38	32	10	2	157
Illegal conversions	6	24	43	40	34	6	153
Need more affordable housing	90	30	17	13	5	2	157
Overcrowding	19	42	19	27	45	4	156

Health & Social Services

The establishment of a part-time health clinic at the Crown Heights Resource Center is assisting the neighborhood with health care issues. However, as with many programs in the neighborhood the hours/days of service are restricted due to budget constraints. Neighborhood residents cited the loss of childcare at the high school and increased lack of affordable childcare as their primary social service need in the neighborhood. There is also significant need for additional youth programs offered in the evenings and weekends. The concern is that when youths go without quality program alternatives during these "critical hours" they become more susceptible to gang influences.

Prioritize the need for access to health and social services in your neighborhood
Concern	Priority 1	Priority 2	Priority 3	Priority 4	Priority 5	Other Priority	Response Count
Childcare	85	34	17	12	12	1	161
Health services	35	37	41	34	12	1	160
Recreational services	16	29	39	32	38	4	158
Senior services	7	22	33	42	51	2	157
Youth services	23	36	32	32	35	2	160

Education & Job Training

Higher rental payments which often go to off-site property owners, which creates disinvestment in the neighborhoods, when what is really needed is more money circulating with local businesses to create economic/employment opportunities for neighborhood residents. The following support services would allow those under-employed in the neighborhood to improve their employability and contribute more economically to the neighborhood:

- Affordable quality childcare for working parents;
- English classes for the primarily Hispanic neighborhood;
- Micro-business training in Spanish; and
- Job skill training for immediate job placement after training completion.

Prioritize the need for access of job training and education in your neighborhood
Concern	Priority 1	Priority 2	Priority 3	Priority 4	Other Priority	Response Count
Adult educational support	46	33	34	28	16	157
Adult job training	30	50	33	33	10	156
Youth educational support	46	39	43	21	11	160
Youth job training	34	25	29	51	20	159
Small business technical assistance	8	13	22	21	90	154

The City also recognizes the need to work with the Oceanside Unified School District and leadership at Oceanside High School to identify ways to reduce the number of high school dropouts. The City has begun an intervention program at the Joe Balderrama Recreation Center with specific at-risk youths and their families through a partnership of Parks & Recreation Staff and Oceanside Neighborhood Policing officers.

Recreational Programs

As discussed above, neighborhood residents and community service providers believe additional youth programs will assist the neighborhood in deterring youths from gang activity. Based on the survey results below team sport activities during non-school days and hours are most needed followed by music and art activities.

Prioritize the need to access the following list of recreational programs
Concern	Priority 1	Priority 2	Priority 3	Priority 4	Response Count
Arts	38	39	47	36	160
Music	29	49	50	23	151
Individual sports	20	44	38	52	154
Team sports	79	26	19	37	161

Social Service Provider Feedback

In addition to survey input from neighborhood residents, the 2008 Assessment received comments from the following organizations and agencies that are active in the neighborhoods:

- Oceanside Police Department
- City of Oceanside Neighborhood Services - Parks & Recreation Division
- City of Oceanside - Housing and Code Enforcement Division
- SD Health and Human Services Agency - Child Welfare Services
- Community Ambassadors
- North County Lifeline
- North County Health Services
- Ballet Tapatio
- Laubach of Oceanside
- Brother Benno Foundation
- Calpulli Omeyocan
- Camp Fire USA
- Boys and Girls Club of Oceanside
- Community HousingWorks
- Vista Community Clinic

CHW gathered data on above-listed organizations including geographic area where they provide services, target population served, type of services provided, amongst other information. The following is a summary the general comments received by the neighborhood service providers:

- Language barriers still exist for many in the community.
- Days and hours of current neighborhood programs are too restricted due to limited funding.
- Increase needed in after school programs, particularly evening and weekend programs for youth.
- Affordable childcare/child development programs needed for working parents.
- Youth programs needed for those in their late teens and early twenties, specifically job and life-skill training as well as social diversion programs.
- Improved coordination needed between existing community service providers.
- Need more volunteers or mentors for neighborhood teens.
- People in the neighborhoods must not only want change, but also participate in the community to effect change.

V. REVITALIZATION GOALS

The following section used community stakeholder input from the Needs Assessment Section to develop Revitalization Goals and Work Initiatives for the NRSA neighborhoods.

5.1 Public Safety

The community will be, in fact and perception, safe for its residents, particularly its children and visitors, and be reasonably free of criminal and other activity that threaten and intimidate residents.

Desired Results and Outcomes:

- Reduced gang activity
- Reduced sale of drugs and alcohol to minors
- Reduced number of burglaries and assaults
- Increased public safety through environmental design

5.2 Physical Conditions, Infrastructure and Facilities

Public facilities and infrastructure including streets, sidewalks, lighting, public utilities, parks and open space will be in a good state of repair and will function effectively to support an attractive community appearance, safe pedestrian and vehicular circulation, attractive and usable open space and amenities, and places for the delivery of important services within the neighborhood.

Desired Results and Outcomes:

- Improved condition and appearance of public lighting, streets, alleys and sidewalks, and improved storm water drainage
- Improved pedestrian safety especially for children going to and from school
- Improved access to parks and recreation facilities
- Increased community facility opportunities
- More open space made available to the community

5.3 Housing

Both multi-family and duplex housing will be upgraded where necessary to decent, safe, sanitary and generally attractive condition, complying with City codes. Multifamily rental property will be effectively managed in a manner that involves, and is responsive to, residents. Investment by existing owners will be actively encouraged.

Desired Results and Outcomes:

- More safe, decent rental housing made available to low- and very low-income households
- Improved health and safety conditions in all housing
- Improved energy efficiency and conservation in all housing
- Existing illegal conversions eliminated or brought up to City codes
- Improved exterior appearance of properties

5.4 Community Health and Social Services

Essential services, including health care, recreation and youth development activities, day care, transportation and retail goods/services shall be reasonably accessible and affordable to residents.

Desired Results and Outcomes:

- Improved access to quality child day-care services
- Increased awareness of and access to available health services
- Enhanced level of recreational and youth services provided for residents
- Increased awareness and access to available senior services residents 55+

5.5 Jobs and Education

Residents will have access to means of improving their economic position through job placement and counseling opportunities, training and education, and business development assistance.

Desired Results and Outcomes:

- Increased opportunities for additional education and job training for adults 21+
- Increased support from all sectors for academic achievement for children and youth 6-18 years of age and job training opportunities for youth ages 16-21
- Increased awareness of and access to small business technical assistance services
- Façade improvement assistance made available to small businesses along San Diego Street

5.6 Recreational Programs

High-quality recreational programs, both physically and mentally stimulating, such as sports programs, music and the arts, will be available for all members of resident families.

Desired Results and Outcomes:

- Increased number of programs and services for children, youth and families
- Increased access to team-oriented youth sports activities
- New or additional dance, music and fine arts activities made available for residents

VI. WORK INITIATIVES

Work initiatives are specific actions that move the community in the direction of meeting its goals. The following initiatives are intended to be implemented or substantially underway in a two- to five-year timeframe. These initiatives were identified by residents and supported by local City officials. The purpose being that they would be implemented in a collaborative and committed manner.

Public Safety Goal: Increase police presence and enforcement activity

Initiatives:

- Increase neighborhood policing to deter criminal activity in the NRSA communities.
- Work with present and former gang members to enroll them in diversion programs and reduce truancy.
- Implement decoy investigations by police for drug activity and State Alcohol and Beverage Control (ABC) for illegal alcohol sales
- Expand Crime-Free Zone program from apartment projects to business areas to prevent crime, in particular commercial burglaries related to drug sales
